

Intellicheck Announces the Appointment of Dr. Amelia Ruzzo to the Board of Directors

MELVILLE, NEW YORK – January 16, 2019 – Intellicheck (NYSE AMERICAN: IDN), an industry leader in identification authentication solutions, today announced the appointment of Dr. Amelia Ruzzo to the Board of Directors.

"Dr. Ruzzo brings to the Intellicheck board a wealth of serious knowledge and experience in industries critical to the company's strategic plan. Going forward her expertise will add to Intellicheck's ability to further penetrate these industries with our innovative and technologically relevant product offerings," said Guy L. Smith, Chairman of the Board.

Dr. Ruzzo has over twenty years of deep experience in technology solutions and solid business management and development expertise. Her experience includes positions with Thermo Fisher Scientific and ITT Exelis. In these roles, she was responsible for aligning IT with business objectives in the development of strategic and tactical plans for segment businesses. Dr. Ruzzo effectively led teams that developed tactical and strategic solutions to enable strong financial results across the businesses' portfolios. At Alliant Techsystems, she directed and guided successful solutions for business capture, technology development, execution and customer support. As Vice President of Information Systems for multi-billion-dollar international gold mining company Placer Dome, Dr. Ruzzo had responsibility for moving the corporation's information technology strategy forward and for oversight of global initiatives of all information systems. Dr. Ruzzo's extensive experience in the defense industry includes six years in successive positions at Lockheed Martin culminating in the Director of the Simulation Technology Group. Her primary job at Lockheed Martin was to support the executive leadership and business development areas by providing the most advanced technology solutions for Lockheed Martin customers.

Dr. Ruzzo's appointment is effective immediately.
